BEST PRACTICE (2) - (2017-18)

1. Title of the practice: Self-Employment Guidance Programme

2. Goal

Self-employment is a pressing need of today. The goal of self-employment guidance programme is to encourage and guide the students to find their own self-employment. It also aims at providing various options of self-employment for the youth.

3. The Context

One of the greatest problems confronted by India is unemployment. Lots of youth are unemployed. Those who are unemployed are frustrated. They begin to feel that they are useless. If they start self-employment their financial condition would be better. Our backward and economically challenged Adivasi/tribal area has terrible unemployment problem. Employment cannot be available for all. So self-employment avenues have to be explored. Considering these issues our college arranges programmes on these issues by inviting resource persons.

4. The Practice

The institution has organized various programmes for creating awareness regarding self-employment.

We organised seminar on self-employment. Expert guidance on economic help was done by bankers.

A Seminar on agro-based industry was also organized. A Visit to various projects was also arranged.

5. Evidence of Success

We have effectively implemented this practice. Students became aware of various self-employment schemes. Students are spreading the message of self-employment to their villages also. They have opened their own small shops and started their own small projects as were guided by the experts.

6. Problems Encountered and Resources Required

Some students are not interested in self-employment. Financial stringency for proper implementation of programme is a real issue. These were some of the limitations or problems we came across while implementing this best practice.

7. Notes

It must be emphasised that all possible measures must be taken for self-employment to start agro-based industries in villages. To encourage trade, more handicraft, cottage and small scale industries should be established.
